How to read

The dash lines (read-aloud lines) show how to say each word: read them as written, one small part at a time.

In this copy the soft echo is not marked.

। ॥	1. Read the marks One bar (।) ends the first half of the verse: pause lightly and take a small breath. Two bars (॥) with a number end the verse: pause a little longer, then begin the next verse.
..	2. Two dots after a letter A letter in italics followed by two dots is a half-sound (a letter without a vowel), worth half a beat. When a line ends with one, hold that half-beat a little longer so the line carries well.
◌ं	3. The dot on top (anusvara) It has no sound of its own and changes with the letter that follows: before k-group letters it sounds like ṅ, ch-group like ñ, ṭ-group like ṇ, t-group like n, p-group like m. Before ya to ha (except la) it is a soft m; before la it sounds like l.
◌ः	4. The two dots (visarga) If the next word starts with a k-group letter (k, kh, g, gh), say the visarga as a short "ha" echo. If the next word starts with kṣa, say the visarga fully with no change (for example verse 41: udbhavaḥ kṣobhaṇaḥ).
व्य	5. Joined letters In a joined letter, say the first letter first and clearly: viṣṇu = vi-ṣ-ṇu, sarva = sar-va. With ha: brahmā is said bra-m-ha, vahni is va-n-hi, jahnu is ja-n-hu.
ऽ	6. The curl (avagraha) It stands for a silent "a". Say the vowel before it a little longer so the a-sound joins in. Two in a row mean the same, twice. Example: after nyagrodho in verse 88.
★	7. A star A star beside a word means a footnote gives another accepted way to read it. Follow your own guru's way.
🙏	8. Starting and ending prayer Said three times at the start and at the end: "Shree Raama Raama Raameti, Rame Raame Manorame, Sahasra-naama tat-tulyam, Raama-naama Varaanane."

🌬️ The “h” at the end of a word

At the end of a line	a soft puff, same vowel	pra-bhuh → pra-bhu^{hu} · ga-tih → ga-ti^{hi} · bhaa-va-nah → bhaa-va-na^{ha}
In the middle of a line	no echo, read as written	lo-ka-saa-ran-gas su-tan-tus (v84)
Line ends without h	nothing extra, just stop	bhoo-taat-maa · e-va cha

Soft = half as loud, half as long. Not “pra-bhu-HU”.
